CAPTCHA Verification

Oxford Journals uses CAPTCHA verification for signing into our Author Services site. This is a standard safety feature designed to protect your account information.

When you click in the box to confirm your log in, the verification will ask you to select correct answer from a number of images.

Once you have successfully selected the images you will be able to sign in. If you are having difficulty with the CAPTCHA verification, please try signing your licence in a different browser.
Your Licensing Options

Once you have logged in, you will be taken to the page offering your licence agreement options. If you lose your path, click again on the link in your Welcome email, log in, and follow the instructions on-screen:

These options are detailed further on our Journals Licensing page, here. You should only select Crown Copyright or US Government licences if you are an employee of the UK or US Government.

For information on Open Access licences, please see our Open Access page, here. Not all of our journals offer an Open Access option, in which case these licence types will not be displayed.
Confirmation

Once you have selected the correct licence type for your paper, please click Select.

You will then be taken to the Copyright page.

At the bottom of the page is the confirmation - please tick the confirmation box and click the button to Accept.

You will then see the following Confirmation message:

You have now successfully signed your licence. A copy will be emailed to you for your records.
